Designing Your Badge

The imprint area is the front of the button - where your image needs to be.

The area between the imprint and the finished button edge is the area that wraps around the side of the button, you can see it but not from the front. This can be a good place to add websites or other information.

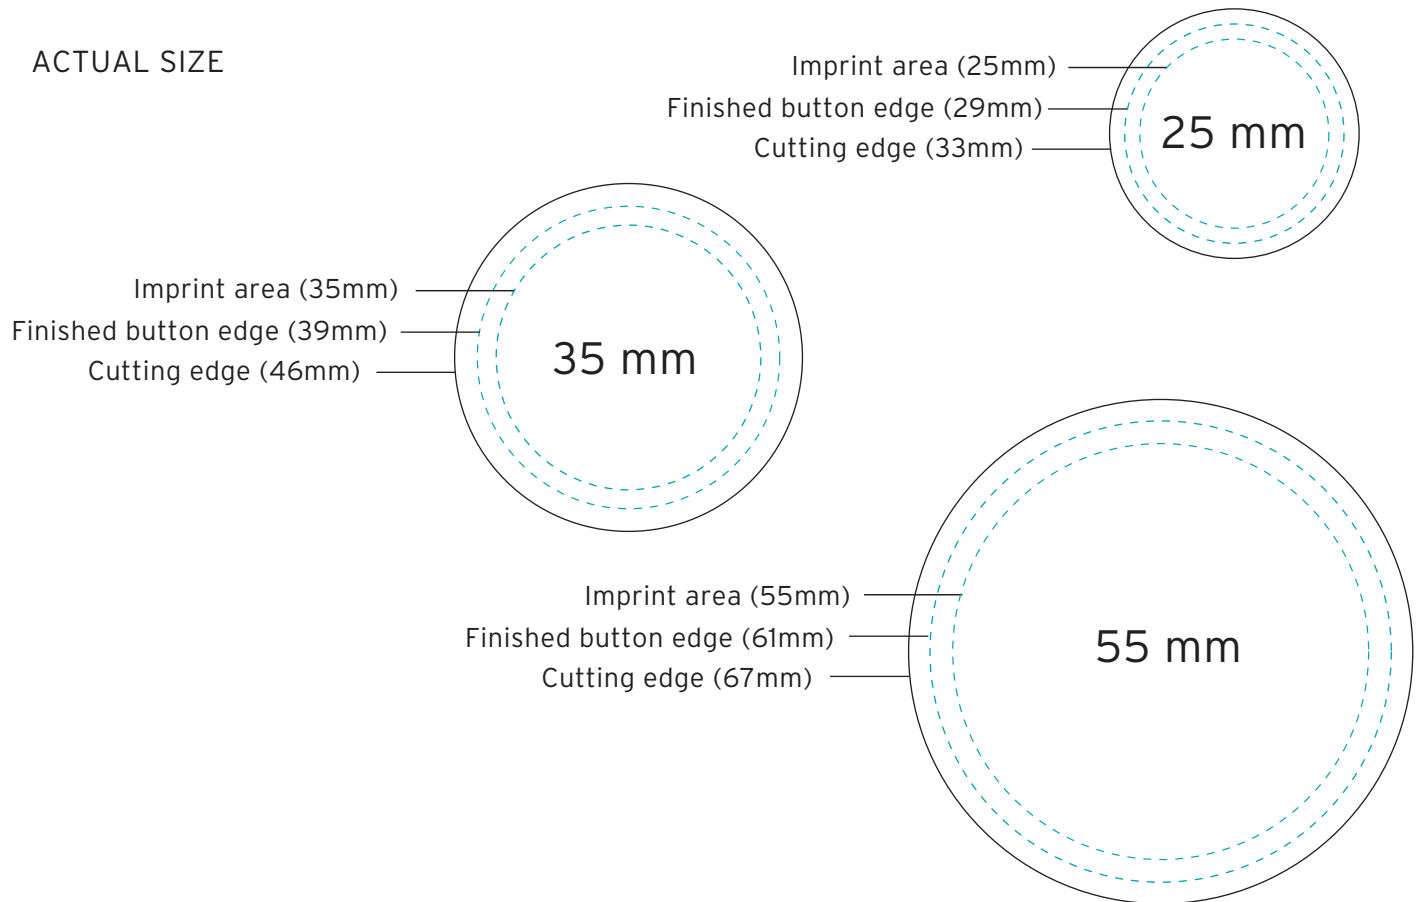

The area between the finished button edge and the cutting edge is the area that is inside the button - it can't be seen.

If your button design has a coloured background, the background should continue all the way to the cutting line so you can't see any white around the edges.

Make sure you clearly mark the cutting edge line on your design, this will ensure it is cut accurately.

Don't mark the dotted lines as you will see them on your final badge.
